ABOUT THE SEMINAR

Internal quality assessment is a system used to monitor academic and administration processes of an educational institution. The new normal has emerged as a dynamic multifaceted reality in academic institutions. Thus there is a felt need to deliberate and revisit HEI assessment systems to develop strategies in the backdrop of the new normal.

Skill development and self-employment has taken centre stage in HEIs to meet the needs and demands of the present ecosystem. Curriculum offered needs to be dynamic and relevant to meet these objectives. In line with the NEP the HEI needs to upgrade the academic and administration processes and tools with application of ICT in setting benchmarks for internal quality assessment and assurance systems.

For smooth transition into the new normal along with the expected implementation of NEP the seminar will focus on emerging institutional eco systems for quality assessment.
